A FUNERAL IN EGYPT.

The Vovel Procession and the Shrill

Voiced Weepers-The Interment. A funeral in Egypt is, indeed, a strange sight, and the first one the visitor sees astonishes very much. At the head of the procession march a corporate body of the blind and a certain number of men, who proceed at a quick step, singing a most jubilant air, while swinging themselves from right to left. Behind them comes the funeral car, or rather a sort of bier, Iron & Locomotive Works. bearing a great red shawl, in which the body is deposited. At the extremity of the bier, on a perch, is placed the turban or the tarbouche of the defunct. Two men carry this bier. They follow with such high spirits the movements of the head of the cortege that the corpse, rocked in every direction, seems to jump under the shawl that shrouds it. The women bring up the rear, some on asses, some on foot.

The first row is formed of weepers or rather screamers, who send forth toward heaven at each step the shrillest notes. The weepers hold in their hand a handkerchief, with which they are not solicitous of wiping their eyes perfectly dry, but which they pull by the two ends behind their head with a gesture that would be desperate if it were not droll. On arrival at the cemetery they take the corpse from the bier, to cast it, such as it is, into the grave. The grand funerals, however, take place with much more solemnity. An important personage is hardly dead in Egypt before his friends and acquaintances hurry to the house; during one or two days they eat and drink at the expense of the dead, or rather his heirs, indulging in the noisiest demonstrations.

When the hour of the interment arrives a scene of the wildest character is produced. The slaves and women of the house throw themselves on the corpse and feign a determination to hinder it from passing the threshold. This lugubrious tragedy is played conscientiouly; they snatch away the coffin; they belay each other with blows, and the most violent and frightful clamor is heard. At last the procession leaves the house and retires to the cemetery, preceded by camels loaded with victuals, which are distributed to the poor hurrying in crowds along the road. All along the road the mourners and friends of the family fight for the honor of bearing the bier for an instant, and thus it passes or rather bounds from hand to hand amid the most frightful disorder. The intermentended, every one returns to the house of the dead to recommence the festivities, dancing and the mortuary demonstrations.-Brooklyn Magazine.

The Strong and the Weak.

Everything has an atmosphere as much as the world has. Human beings are surrounded in this way by a spiritual appreciable part of themselves, not entirely organized. These atmospheres impinge on each other. The strong over shadow the weak and devour them. An infant is always in danger. To allow them to be promiscuously fondled and kissed is a crime. The finer the organism the more sensitive; the grosser the organism the less sensitive. A swarm of bees gets ragingly irritated at the approach of one man; it is soothed and willing to be handled by another. A sensitive plant is simply a plant that cannot endure the approach of your hands. The irritability of people is often the result of the encroachments of other people's atmosphere. - M. Maurice, M. D., in Globe-Democrat.

Well Paid for Whistling. There is now in New York a lady who whistles at private entertainments, but for a consideration. She gets $25 a night for whistling in New York drawing rooms, and is said to have all the engagements she wants. The husband of this lady was well off at one time, but he lost his money. Whistling was her great accomplishment, and when she heard that this gift could be turned to pecuniary account, she saw no reason why she should not aid her husband by her gifts in this line, and she has succeeded beyond her expectations. - Argonaut.

In Elegant Style. "So the missis is to be married, eh?" asked the gardener of the cook. "Yis, she is that same, and in illigant stoyle, too. She's goin' to have a dhress thray yarruds long, an' four pall bearers to carry it."-Youth's Companion. Christine Nilsson began under Sig. Merelli for a salary of $200 a month. A few years later the signor had to pay the Swedish nightingale $1,400 a night,
